

PRINCE GEORGE

Mon, May 25 7:00pm
Room 1-306, College of New
Caledonia (3330-22nd Ave)

BURNS LAKE

Tuesday, May 26 7:00pm
Room 007, College of New
Caledonia (545 Hwy 16 W.)

SMITHERS

Wednesday, May 27 7:00pm
Ferguson Room at Hudson
Bay Lodge (3251 E Hwy 16)

TERRACE

Thursday, May 28 7:00pm
Coast Hotel
(4620 Lakelse Ave.)

KITIMAT

Friday, May 29 7:00pm
Kitimat Rod & Gun Club (386
Haisla Blvd.)

Ian McAllister Andrew Nikiforuk

a story with two ends

Two Canadian authors discuss tar sands, pipelines and the uncertain future of BC's wild coast

"McAllister documents with passion how the lives of these coastal wolves are so interconnected with their half-land, half-water habitat."

-Calgary Herald

"Andrew Nikiforuk is one of the most astute, relentless and original writers of his generation."

-Vancouver Magazine

An award winning photographer and author, Ian McAllister works for the organization Pacific Wild and is one of Canada's leading wilderness advocates. His first book, The Great Bear Rainforest won the Booksellers' Choice Award for BC Book of the Year. His latest book is The Last Wild Wolves of the Great Bear Rainforest. McAllister is also a nature photographer and filmmaker and along with his wife, received Time Magazine's "Hero for the Planet" award. Ian lives with his wife and their two children, Callum and Lucy on Denny Island, BC.

Andrew Nikiforuk's work as a journalist – for such magazines as Saturday Night, Maclean's, Canadian Business, Report on Business Magazine, Georgia Straight, and Equinox – has earned him four National Magazine Awards, the Atkinson Fellowship in Public Policy, and top honors from the Association of Canadian Journalists. His latest book, Tar Sands: Dirty Oil and the Future of a Continent reveals the true costs of America's oil addiction.

Presented by

FORESTETHICS

